HONDURAN FLIER FOUND

Coast Guard Cutter Reports Rescue of Man Believed Captain Garay.

BULLETIN

By The Associated Press

NORFOLK, Va., Aug. 11—Captain Lisandro Garay, Honduran flier, who hopped off Sunday afternoon on a non-stop flight from Brooklyn to Tegucigalpa, Honduras, was picked up this morning at 10 o'clock by the steamship Cieco, 20 miles east of Cape Lookout, it was stated in a message received at the local coast guard office. The Biboco reported to the Charleston navy yard by radio today that Garay was exhausted and his plane demolished.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Aug 11—Parker Cramer, American airman, and his radio operator, lost since Sunday on a flight between the Shetland islands and Copenhagen, still were missing today and hope for their safety waned.

Danish authorities were of the opinion they might have come down to a forced landing on the waves and been blown out to sea by a storm which has been raging over the North sea for several days The regular air mail service over that stretch has been suspended because of the weather.

Captain Riis Larsen Arctic flier said they might have been forced far to the south by the storm and drifted out to open sea where it would be difficult to locate them The water was reported to be choppy and the wind high

A squadron of Danish seaplanes aided by several vessels searched the Kattegat from the southern tip of Norway to Copenhagen yesterday and another flotilla of Norwegian planes scanned the Skargaard sea from Oslo to Bergen but no clues were found.

Cramer and his operator Pacquette left Detroit, Mich, several weeks ago without announcing their destination and flew across Canada to Greenland to chart an air mail route from America to Europe. Hopping to the Faroe islands and the Shetland islands, they left for Copenhagen Sunday morning and were last heard from that afternoon

Lindberghs Forced Down

NOTED FLIERS LAND BEFORE REACHING NOME

Miss Goal by 75 Miles, Coming Down on Seward Peninsula.

ON SECOND HALF OF TRIP

Believed To Have Encountered Fog After Leaving Point Barrow.

By The Associated Press

NOME, Alaska, Aug 11—Coming to earth about 75 miles short of their immediate destination, Col and Mrs Charles A. Lindbergh landed their pontooned monoplane along the north coast of the Seward peninsula at 11 last night (5 a. m., Marion time, today) and awaited full daylight to proceed to Nome

Beginning the second half of their 7,000 mile vacation air trip from Washington to the Orient, the flying couple left Point Barrow at 11 53 (Marion time) last night for a 523 mile hop to Nome A protracted rain and other unfavorable conditions had held them at Point Barrow for three days and two nights They left as soon as weather reports indicated a clearing coast line

The exact spot where the plane landed was not mentioned in messages but it was believed to be somewhere along the Kotzebue sound

About an hour after leaving Point Barrow Mrs Lindbergh radioed that all was 'Okeh' Later she requested that bonfires and flares be made ready to aid in landing here

Not Far from Goal

This message which indicated they had flown about 390 miles of the route approximately an hour before stopping, led to the supposition they were within at the most an hour's flight of this Bering sea port Efforts were being made by the radio station here to make contact with the plane again

Although the message telling of the landing did not give reasons it was believed fog, which started to settle here within two hours after the couple left Point Barrow, had extended up the coast and that the flying colonel would take no chances on making a blind landing here

Because of the short nights of this near-Arctic region it was believed the Lindberghs would proceed down the coast within three or four hours, provided the fog did not become so dense as to be unsafe for even daylight flying.

Domestic Relations Judge Raps Parents Who Gave Child Away During Infancy.

By International News Service

COLUMBUS O, Aug 11—Sharply reprimanding parents who refuse to abandon "worldly habits and entertainments and devote their time to the care and rearing of their babies Domestic Relations Judge E. V. Mahaffey today had ruled that a five year-old boy shall not be returned to his father and mother, a Galion couple

Judge Mahaffey flatly refused to take Donald G Carroll 5 from the home of Mr and Mrs Frank DuVall of near Columbus where he has lived for two years and return him to his mother, Mrs Marie Collins Carroll of Galion, who filed a writ of habeas corpus plea here to obtain custody of the child

Child Five Years Old

"The parents, Judge Mahaffey declared in his decision, "are seeking to regain custody and possession of the child after they gave it away when only two months old and it now is five and they have not seen it or attempted to see it since they gave it away save two or three times

"As soon as they could find some one willing to adopt it they gave their consent and then never again attempted to show any interest in the child thereafter the judge added When the father was earning $5 a day both parents claimed they could not care for the child, he said

There would be no use for juvenile courts the judge said "if parents would just realize when they bring children into the world that it is their duty and should be their pleasure to give up some of their worldly entertainments and devote their time to the care and rearing of their babies"

Mrs Carroll declared the child was allowed to be adopted because her husband didn't have steady

City Cuts 1932 Budget $47,000; May Make Other Slashes

Bond Retirement Needs $30,973 Less for Year

Actual Operating Expenses Reduced $6,490· Earnings Estimated at $90,200, Leaving $430,272 To Come from Taxes· Expect Increase in Gas Tax Fund.

A reduction of approximately $47,000 for all purposes is made by the city for 1932 in the annual budget adopted by city council last night. A reduction in the number of bonds to be retired next year from $214 245 16 to $183 272 50, provides a large part of the reduction.

Cut Operating Costs

A reduction of $6 490 56 for operating expenses of the city is also made in the budget. In spite of the total reduction council is planning to spend $40 000 more than last year, to increase the poor relief fund to $25 000 and to provide for deficits in the lighting and hydrant rental funds with which the city will be faced at the end of this year.

The budget recently completed by a committee consisting of the finance committee of council and City Solicitor Carter Patton, and which will now be presented to the county budget commission, calls for the expenditure for all purposes of $520 472 44 compared to $567 645 72 asked for this year.

Faces Heavy Cut

Approximately $36,000 was cut from the various funds by the committee in an effort to bring operating expenses down within the city's income. Further slashes were hinted by councilmen at the meeting last night, although none would say just where the ax may fall.

But one department was given an increase by the budget, the fund for the fire department was increased from $65,900 to $67,210. This was made necessary, it was explained, by the addition of four firemen last year. The police department fund was reduced from $48,640 to $37,000 and the police pension fund from $10 000 to $6,000. The fund for parks suffered the greatest cut when the amount was reduced from $15,000 to $3,000.

Hospital Fund Reduced

The fund for hospital purposes was reduced from $60,000 to $55,800 and the public service department from $10,360 to $5,400. The enactment of a law by the last legislature extending the purposes for which the gasoline tax might be used, will make up for this reduction, it was said last night. The fund for the engineering department was reduced from $8,450 to $6,500 and for repairing sidewalks from $2 000 to $1,500.

A fund of $200 for street sprinkling was eliminated entirely. The municipal court suffered a slight decrease when the fund was reduced from $10,750 to $10,250. The garbage collection department took a cut of $2 500 when the fund was reduced from $32,500 to $30,000.

The fund for water rentals was increased from $29,704.50 to $36,969 00 to allow for the deficit for this purpose which will face the city at the end of this year. The street lighting fund was also increased from $45,000 to $65,000 for the same reason.

Earnings to Reach $90,000

Earnings of the city during the year are estimated in the budget at $90 200. An increase in the gasoline tax of $10 000 is anticipated in the budget. The anticipated receipts are given as $30,000 from the automobile license fund, $40,000 from the gasoline tax and $42 000 from the City hospital.

Estimated earnings bring the city's requirements from taxes down to $430,272.

ELEMENTS KILL FIVE IN JAPAN

Typhoons, Volcanic Eruptions, Earthquake Also Cause Heavy Damage.

By The Associated Press

TOKYO, Aug. 11—Japan suffered greatly from the elements today and yesterday. There were five known dead, scores injured, thousands of buildings destroyed or damaged and many fishing boats missing.

The known deaths and damage resulted from a typhoon that swept the islands of Miyako and Ishigaki in the Loo Choos, south of Japan. Two eruptions of the volcano Asama, near Karuizawa, showered the surrounding country with ashes and small stones.

Citizens ran into the streets at Hamamatsu, about 100 miles southwest of Tokyo, when an earthquake shook the city shortly before midnight. The town was in darkness for hours, but no damage was done other than the breaking of electric lines.

The quake also was felt at Yokohama, only a few miles from Tokyo, and at Osaka, Nagoye, Atami and Shimizu.

Authorities estimated 2 000 buildings were destroyed and 3,000 homes damaged by the typhoon on Miyako island.

At Ishigaki hundreds of houses were destroyed or damaged and eight motor fishing vessels sank. No deaths were reported from Ishigaki.

BIG PAY FOR LECTURES

LONDON — The American lecture tour of Winston Churchill, lone insurgent of the Conservative party, is expected to gross him $45 000 for roughly 70 hours' work.

Churchill has engagements for 45 lectures in 10 weeks at the rate of $1 000 a lecture, late this fall.

In addition to the work of lecturing, travelling in the United States presents strain to the European platform men invading America for often it is necessary to ride all night after completing one lecture in order to arrive at the scene of the next day's address.

Churchill's first lecture tour of the states was at the conclusion of the Boer war while he was in the limelight. On that tour he was managed by the late Major Pond, who had handled such celebrities as Mark Twain, Walt Whitman and Henry Ward Beecher.

Churchill, son of an American mother, has been a soldier, writer and statesman, having served with the Spanish forces in Cuba in the closing years of the last century and with the English in the African campaigns.

WINSTON CHURCHILL

He is expected to devote considerable of his lecture time to a discussion of India and to the destiny of the English speaking people.

Kentucky Wins Decision in Toll Bridge Dispute

Ohio Supreme Court Judge Rules Southern State May Condemn Brown County Property for Approach to Structure; Further Appeal Possible.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O, Aug. 11—The state of Kentucky today had won another victory in a legal fight to prove its right to condemn land in Ohio for the northern approach of a toll bridge now under construction across the Ohio river between Maysville, Ky, and Aberdeen, O.

Two members of the Ohio supreme court, after a hearing yesterday, denied the appeal of the Maysville bridge company of Cincinnati, owner of the land, for an alternative writ of prohibition to prevent condemnation proceedings which Judge John T. Quinlan of the Brown county, O, probate court has decided to hear.

Chief Justice Decides

The decision was handed down from the bench by Chief Justice Carrington T. Marshall and Justice E. S. Matthias. In effect, it reversed the company's contention that special acts of congress and the Kentucky legislature governing construction of the bridge were unconstitutional.

Chief Justice Marshall informed the plaintiff, however, that the decision did not preclude an appeal to the high court as a whole, when it reconvenes next month. Meanwhile, though, Judge Quinlan can proceed with the condemnation suit in which the jury will be called upon to fix a price the bridge company is entitled to collect for the land.

One of the issues raised by Francis T. Bartlett of Cincinnati, attorney for the company, was that in the event of a jury verdict, Kentucky could pay the fixed price and take over the property. This, he said, means that if the price later were found unfair there would be no recourse since a sovereign state could not be sued.

Justices Marshall and Matthias said, however, that operation of the bridge could be tied up by injunction restraining use of the land pending final disposal of the case. Justice Marshall added the remark "you might call 'Alfalfa Bill' Murray up here." He was referring to Governor Murray of Oklahoma, who called out state troops to close an approach to a toll bridge during the recent Oklahoma-Texas bridge dispute.

Dispute Four Years Old

The Ohio-Kentucky controversy had its inception four years ago when the Maysville bridge company bought the land in question to build a bridge over the Ohio. An act of congress was obtained but the bridge never was built. Later, Kentucky, through its highway department obtained a similar act and proceeded with construction of a bridge in the same vicinity. The span now reaches almost to the Ohio shore but the Maysville company owns the land needed for an approach.

THE FRANK [illegible]

Dr. Raffensperger Tells How Bureau Keeps Tab on the Weather

Marion Man Has Checked Temperatures and Precipitation for Many Years.

Above are shown the house containing the weather thermometers and the rain and snow gauge used by Dr. E. H. Raffensperger in preparing his daily weather reports for The Star, the state weather bureau at Columbus and the national bureau in Washington, D. C.

"MY thermometer registered 96 yesterday and The Star carried Dr. Raffensperger's report of 92. I don't see why my thermometer never agrees with the reports."

Every day, summer and winter, Dr E. H. Raffensperger hears remarks of this kind and he's agreed to give out the "dope" on the why's and how's of the local weather bureau.

To clear up any queries, he first explained that almost without exception thermometers are hung against walls or porch pillars. These surfaces hold the heat or cold and the mercury is influenced to the extent of from two to sometimes 10 degrees variation from the temperature registered on the thermometers at the weather bureau.

Uses Two Thermometers

Two thermometers, a maximum and a minimum, register the temperatures reported by Dr. Raffensperger. They are suspended in the shuttered "house" shown in the accompanying picture, touching nothing. The "house" is shuttered on all four sides and on the bottom and has a double top with air space between. Thus the thermometers register only the temperature of the air circulating around them. No sunlight enters the "house."

Both thermometers are suspended horizontally. The maximum instrument is filled with mercury. A construction in the tube about half an inch from the bowl, keeps the mercury from flowing back into the bulb after the high temperature of the day has been registered. At night when the thermometer is set, it is inverted and whirled around, the centrifugal force throws the mercury back into the bulb.

Alcohol is used in the minimum instrument. On top of the column of liquid, flowing inside the column is a steel needle that stays on top of the column and when it is dragged down to the lowest temperature of the night, stays there, the alcohol flowing up around it. The thermometer is inverted before it is reset and the alcohol flows back into the bulb.

Set Each Day

The two thermometers are set each day at 5:30 p. m. and at that time both read the same.

Each day at 8 a. m. Dr. Raffensperger wires the temperature and precipitation, if any, to Columbus, giving the maximum and minimum temperatures and the weather conditions. This he does from April until the first of October and receives a small remuneration, his only pay for his work.

In the winter he reports to Columbus only if half an inch or more of precipitation has fallen. Precipitation, in this case being either rain or snow.

The rain gauge is a metal cylinder, nine inches in diameter, with a funnel-shaped top which can be removed. Inside the outside cylinder is a brass tube into which the rain drips through the funnel. The tube holds two inches of rainfall and any more overflows into the cylinder and must be measured in the tube after it has been emptied.

A measuring stick calibrated into hundreths of an inch measures the rain or snow fall. The tube is 20 inches long. Ten inches of water in the tube is one inch of rainfall.

In the winter the brass tube is removed to register snowfall. Ten inches of snow equals approximately one inch of precipitation. The snow is melted to measure the precipitation.

Just a Hobby

Dr Raffensperger, whose profession is dentistry, does the weather bureau work as a hobby. He's been at it for more than 38 years, and it's second nature for him to go out each morning, read his thermometers, measure the rain gauge if any rain or snow has fallen, and make his reports to Columbus.

When Dr. Raffensperger first took oevr the weather bureau it was a part of the United States war department. Since that time it has been transferred to the department of agriculture.

Dr. Raffensperger, organizer of the first military company in Marion, was captain of Co. G, Ohio National Guard, when an officer from Columbus came here in search of someone to take over the weather bureau to be established here. Dr. Raffensperger, being a guard officer, was approached, and accepted the offer. That has been nearly 40 years ago.

All equipment used by Dr. Raffensperger is furnished by the government. It is not unusual for local persons to take thermometers to him to be tested.

He gets a real "kick" out of Marion hostesses who call him before they plan a big outdoor party, to find out if the weather will be clear or rainy. Dr. Raffensperger hastens to explain that he cannot forecast weather conditions. He only reports what has gone the day before.

ILLNESS FATAL

Union County Resident Succumbs at Home of Daughter.

MARYSVILLE, Aug. 11—Peter Hudson died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Nancy Stokes two miles south of Middleburg Sunday. He was taken to St. Francis hospital six weeks ago for an operation for gall trouble and was brought home two weeks ago. Funeral services were held this afternoon at the home and interment in the Middleburg cemetery.

• • •

Joe Potts of Marysville was arrested Sunday night in Richwood and placed in jail there for an alleged automobile theft at Urbana. He was taken to Urbana yesterday to answer to the charge. He is also said to be wanted in Marysville on a bad check charge.

• • •

Application for the removal of L. J. McCoy of Richwood as executor of the estate of Julia P. Lyons, deceased, has been filed in probate court by Paul C. Weller, Sarah H. Barlow, Florence Gilliland and Claude Evans, who claim that McCoy has been negligent in settling up the estate.

• • •

Seven properties in Richwood will be offered for sale by Sheriff Rausch next Saturday. The real estate is owned by Edward Shambs of Columbus formerly of Richwood, and is appraised at $22,000. The property is ordered sold to satisfy a claim in the foreclosure suit of the People's Building and Loan Co. of Delaware for $21,783.83.

VOTING LIGHT

Bucyrus Residents in No Hurry To Go to Polls Early.

BUCYRUS, Aug. 11—Despite the fact that there are five Democratic contests scheduled in today's primary including a three-sided contest for the mayorality nomination, little interest was evinced at the polls during the early morning hours today.

Contests for nomination in Bucyrus which will be settled by the voters today include besides the mayorality contest, that of city auditor, treasurer, councilman from the first and fourth wards. No Republican contests are in the field.

Early returns are expected from the city's four precincts and all precinct officials have been instructed to first count the votes and then telephone the election board before tallying the votes.

"TOASTING" expels SHEEP-DIP BASE naturally
(Black, biting, harsh irritant chemicals)
present in every tobacco leaf

"They're out—so they can't be in!"

Every LUCKY STRIKE is made of the finest tobacco leaves the world can offer—the finest from Turkey—the finest from Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia, Georgia and the Carolinas—the Cream of many Crops throughout the world. But all tobacco leaves, regardless of price and kind, as nature produces them, contain harsh irritants. LUCKY STRIKE'S exclusive "TOASTING" Process—a process that mellows, that purifies, that includes the use of the modern Ultra Violet Ray—expels certain harsh irritants naturally present in every tobacco leaf. We sell these expelled irritants to manufacturers of chemical compounds, who use them as a base in making sheep-dip*, as well as a powerful spraying solution for fruits, flowers and shrubs—enough to permit the daily dipping of over 50,000 sheep or the daily spraying of many thousands of trees. Thus, you are sure these irritants, naturally present in all tobacco leaves, are not in your LUCKY STRIKE. "They're out—so they can't be in!" No wonder LUCKIES are always kind to your throat.

Offers to Take Wheat in Trade for Automobile

A bushel of wheat for three loaves of bread or a couple packages of cigarets, has become more or less common, but it remained for a local automobile dealer to be the first to come forward with an offer to trade an automobile for wheat.

Zeb Stout who operates a used car agency on north Main street has placed a classified advertisement in The Star in which he offers to accept in exchange for a $90 automobile, 150 bushels of wheat. A check of grain buyers today showed they were offering 41 cents a bushel or 19 cents less than is offered by Stout in his automobile deal.

his trim pontooned ship off the lagoon at Point Barrow, where the famous couple had been the center of all attention of the several hundred Eskimos and eight whites. they were reported over the coast guard cutter, Northland, at Winwright, 80 miles from Barrow.

Crowd Disappointed

It was a disappointed crowd of Nomeites that turned from the beach here, where practically the entire population of the town had been waiting for almost two hours, when word was received the flying vacationists would not arrive until later today.

Preparations had been made for the landing and flares and huge piles of driftwood and old lumber were all ready to be lighted.

This is the second fog the Lindberghs have encountered since arriving in Alaskan territory. While flying from Alkavik, N. W. T., Saturday, they ran into a bank east of Point Barrow, but flew around it and landed in clear weather at their first Alaskan stop.

The Seward peninsula is the most westerly point of the North American continent. It juts into the Bering strait just over the 16thth degree of longitude. On the north is Kotzebue sound and in the south the larger Norton sound. The city of Nome is on the southern coast.

The peninsula is one of several titular monuments to William Henry Seward, secretary of state in the Lincoln cabinet, one of whose greatest achievements was the purchase of Alaska from Russia in 1867.

CUBAN FORCES ON VERGE OF BATTLE

Clash Between Rebels and Loyal Troops Reported Imminent.

By The Associated Press

HAVANA, Aug. 11—All Cuba was in the grip of martial law today, and strict censorship prevailed as the government struggled to put down a revolutionary movement which was spreading throughout the island.

President Gerardo Machado, acting on the authority granted him by congress, suspended constitutional privileges in all the provinces, signing a decree which recognized that the situation was serious.

"Political elements hostile to the government, in accord with enemies of the present social system," he said, "have lent greater activity to their campaign against the public peace, realizing in various sections acts of rebellion of armed forces in frank revolutionary attitude."

A clash between government troops and rebels was reported imminent on the outskirts of Havana where the loyalists had surrounded a band of insurgents and were preparing to attack.

Nine revolutionists and one rural guard officer were believed to have been killed and six others wounded in a sharp engagement in Guanabacoa last night. Another skirmish took place at San Nichols where federal forces captured five prisoners and wounded one.

FAKE BALL PLAYER HUNTED FOR FRAUD

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 11—A man who falsely posed as a member of the Cincinnati Reds baseball club and married an eighteen-year-old divorcee on the strength of the misrepresentation was hunted today by detectives after the bride said he passed a bad check for $125 and abandoned her several days after the wedding.

Officers believed the man is the same swindler who three months ago posed as a member of the New York Giants team and married a Cincinnati telephone operator. That man also was wanted for passing worthless checks, records showed.

The divorcee said the "baseball player" took her to Reno where he aided her to divorce her first husband, then returned and married her at Covington, Ky. She said he disappeared yesterday after writing her a bad check.

JEFFERSON BLAKE IS HELD TO GRAND JURY

Marion Man Involved in Shooting Case Bound Over by Morrow Co. Justice.

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD, Aug. 11—Jefferson Blake, 30, of Marion, who is in the Morrow county jail on a charge of shooting to kill, was bound over to the Morrow county grand jury under bond of $1,000 in the court of Justice W. M. Kaufman here today.

Blake, with Charles Brown of Fulton, was arrested by Sheriff Charles E. Miller following a shooting affair at the home of Brown in Fulton the night of Aug. 1. Blake was unable to furnish bond and was returned to the jail. Brown is charged with shooting with intent to wound.

The shooting occurred when Blake and Clyde Davis, a neighbor of Brown's, are said to have gone to the Brown home and called the latter out to the road. Three shots are said to have been fired during the fight. Blake was injured by shot from a shotgun which lodged in his right side, while two shots from a revolver owned by Blake were found lodged in the porch of the Brown home.

The Davis and Brown families have been having trouble over a broken down fence through which cows have escaped, and over a dog, although authorities believe that these matters have nothing to do with the gun battle.

OKLAHOMA JOINED IN OIL PRICE WARFARE

Texas, Kansas Take Up Battle To Boost Cost of Petroleum.

By The Associated Press

AUSTIN, Tex., Aug. 11—Two neighboring oil states, Texas and Kansas today had joined Governor William H. Murray of Oklahoma in his ultimatum to refiners the price of crude petroleum must rise.

Forty-eight hours after the defeat of the state administration oil emergency legislative program in the senate here, Governor Ross S. Sterling issued a statement which was generally construed to mean he would join Oklahoma in its week-old martial law shutdown movement if the legislature did not vote oil relief he considered necessary at its special session. The special session is to close tomorrow.

In Kansas, purchasers of oil had been given notice by the public service commission a hearing would be ordered to determine the nature and extent of a shutdown order for the state unless the price was advanced this week to at least 60 cents a barrel.

Governor Murray demanded a $1 minimum. The mid-continent oil field top price is 52 cents.

Airport mechanics placed 360 gallons of gasoline in his monoplane, and accompanied by Acosta, he rolled away.

Field officials said Acosta got out of the plane at the edge of the field, and the plane took to the air and soon was out of sight. That was at 3:30 p. m. (Marion time) Sunday.

Fliers said he had enough fuel to last him 30 hours, which was up at 9:30 p. m. last night. He should have reached the Honduran capital by 6 o'clock last night.

S. Parades, Honduran consul-general at New York, said the flier would receive a court martial if he landed at Honduras, because of a military escapade.

It was revealed here that Garay had neither a flying license or state department permit to make such a flight.

When the child was 2 months old it was placed with a family named Krause, and two months later it was agreed to place Donald, called "Jackie," in the hands of Mr. and Mrs. Herschel Law. The child's parents agreed to the Laws adopting him it was said.

Mrs. Carroll said she did not know the Laws failed to adopt Donald until last Christmas, when she learned the Laws had placed the child with the DuValls. She then brought the suit.

The judge declared the welfare of the child is paramount and that he recognized the right of every child to be with its parents.

POLICE HOLD RADIO ARTIST FOR MURDER

Victim's Dying Wish Ignored by Authorities in San Francisco Shooting.

By International News Service

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Aug. 11—Irving Kennedy, radio entertainer, today was under formal charge of murder, despite the dying wish of his fiance, Mrs. Pauline Hopkins Kiel, 32, that no police action be taken after her death.

Mrs. Kiel died from a bullet wound she received during a drinking party in Kennedy's apartment. Kennedy declared she was shot accidentally while they were examining his revolver.

Kennedy told his version of the shooting without display of emotion.

"We had been doing a lot of drinking," he said. "Mrs. Kiel and I were going on a fishing trip the following day. When I go fishing I always take my automatic pistol along and I went to my hunting case and got it out.

"Mrs. Kiel was always afraid of guns. I told her she might just as well get used to this one and then turned around. Suddenly the gun went off. That's all I can remember."

Murder charges were preferred against Kennedy when police stated they were not satisfied with the story he told, that an apparent attempt had been made to cover up the shooting and that they had not been notified of the shooting until eight hours after it had occurred.

Mrs. Kiel, before she died, asked that no police action be taken against Kennedy.

Two Congressional Primaries in Ohio

By The Associated Press

Two Ohio districts held special primaries today to nominate candidates for congressional vacancies caused by death. The general election will be held in November.

In addition, numerous Ohio municipalities held primaries to nominate candidates for mayor or other local offices.

The main interest in the primaries was in the Cincinnati district where the vacancy was caused by the death several months ago of Speaker of the House Nicholas Longworth, Republican. Both of the candidates to succeed him are advocates of prohibition repeal.

The assured outcome of the Cincinnati vote was the nomination of State Senator David Lorbach, Democrat, and John B. Hollister, Republican.

In the 20th district, Cleveland candidates were to be chosen to succeed the late Congressman Charles A. Mooney, a Democrat. Leaders of both parties anticipated the final winner of the race would be Municipal Judge Martin L. Sweeney, also a Democrat.

PLANE GOES DOWN IN HARBOR; 6 SAVED

Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., One of Group Rescued in Porto Rican Waters.

By The Associated Press

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Aug. 11—A Pan-American airways plane, in which were Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt Jr., wife of the governor of Porto Rico and five government officials, hit an obstruction late yesterday while landing at Ponce harbor and sank in five minutes, it was learned today.

All aboard were saved. The passengers were guests of George W. Crouse, Syracuse, N. Y., silver manufacturer.

News of the accident became public today when the party returned to San Juan.

The plane landed perfectly but struck a rock or some other unseen object, ripping open the hull while it was taxiing toward the shore. The pilot attempted to get into the air again but water quickly flowed in the boat cabin, soon stalling the engine. Within two minutes, the passengers estimated, there was more than a foot of water in the cabin.

Attorney-General James R. Beverley and Rafael Rios, chief of the bureau of commerce, opened the overhead hatchway, the only exit, and put Mrs. Roosevelt on deck.

The legislators in some states have acquired the federal junketing disease, it seems. Anyway, one party of Illinois lawmakers is to make a trip to Europe and another to Mexico at state expense. Another light on the growing cost of state government.

Acting Secretary of the Navy Jahncke denies the report that the personnel of the navy is to be cut from its present enlisted strength of 79,800 to 75,000 men. The report may be put down as another of the pacifist grapevines intended to cause apprehension and disturbance among enlisted men. The prospect of losing a job during a period of unemployment is not heartening.

The state veterinarian of Oregon, is authority for the statement that 122,518 horses were killed in that state last year for food. Well, why not? Why should not a young wild horse—the horses slaughtered were horses running wild—be as good eating as an ordinary beef, to say nothing of an old and decrepit cow?

It is not hard to assume, in the light of his recent statement, that Congressman Clarence Cannon is in line with what is evidently to be the contention of the self-styled "Progressives," that nothing less than a dole will meet the unemployment situation. Of course, the radicals do not call it a dole, but that is what it really would prove to be.

A Watchdog Without Teeth.

Ever since the Paris peace pact was signed three years ago this month, there has been a tendency to regard it as a pillar of light leading civilized nations away from war. As an ideal conception, this is excellent; practically, it is flimsy.

There has been considerable discussion, most recently at the Williamstown institute of politics, on the advisability of "implementing" the pact, to make it more than an instrument of pure ideality. As it exists now, no machinery for peaceful settlement or for cooperation among governments is provided. Recourse to war "for the solution of international controversies," and renunciation of war as "an instrument of national policy" are condemned, but that is all. The ease with which pacts are swept aside in the frightened panic of war is too well understood to permit faith in the protection of a watchdog without teeth.

The most direct exercise of the Paris peace pact up to this time has been Secretary of State Stimson's reproach to China and Russia at the time when these two countries were apparently working themselves into a state of war. In the name of the Paris peace pact, Mr. Stimson reminded both nations of their obligations; he received a tart reply for his trouble. Hostilities were broken off, but not because of the existence of a peace pact denouncing war. Russia was not afraid of a pact which had no "implements" of enforcement.

Again, at the London naval conference there was an attempt to exercise the pact. The argument had all the strength of utter simplicity: if all the nations represented at London were signatories of a pact denouncing war why should huge fleets be maintained? France answered for the world when it pointed out that, as yet, no sufficient guarantee of the security without which disarmament was impossible had been extended. There was no faith in a watchdoog without teeth.

The world has moved closer to reality, perhaps, since the Paris peace pact was signed. The realization that the pact's strength as an idealistic argument against war is only a fraction of what it might become as a practical instrument preventing war is growing. It may result in another highly important international development in the next few years.

Truck and Bus Traffic.

The Ohio public utilities commission has denied a motor truck line operating between Akron and Chicago a certificate to do interstate business. This may amount to prodding a hornets' nest, if the potential possibilities of the decision are developed.

The commission's opinion states that trucks and buses utilize too much space on the state's roads, to the detriment of private car owners. "There has been a growing feeling that the highways of Ohio have been unduly burdened by trucks and buses in commercial business," the commission says. It is established that a state may prescribe regulations necessary for public safety and order in respect to the operation of motor vehicles, whether they are moving in intrastate or interstate commerce. The commission's decision is a popular one with the public.

"It is time the commission must recognize the losses that are facing the established railroads, and express its feeling that the heavier freight, particularly in the longer hauls, should not be further diverted from the rails," is another important part of that opinion. The commission has no legal ability to act on this aspect of competition from trucks, but it can place itself on record as opposed to it.

In the Buck case, which was the high watermark of judicial interference with state regulation of interstate bus traffic, the United States supreme court denied the right of state commissions to regulate carriers operating in interstate commerce. Since then, however, state power has been upheld in several important cases, one of them, the case of Clark versus Poor, concerning Ohio. In that case, the Buck case was set aside and state rights to regulate interstate commerce affirmed. The result of that judicial opinion seems to be teetering, sometimes inclining to state regulation and at other times inclining to federal regulation. An appeal from the commission's decision concerning the Akron-to-Chicago truck line may be the impetus that will force the issues one way or the other.

Public opinion, created by personal experiences on highways, will shape judicial decisions in all such cases eventually. Already, such statements as the following, made by Justice Brandeis, upholding Ohio's law taxing motor transportation companies on its roads, reflects this opinion.

"The highways are public property. Users of them, although engaged exclusively in interstate commerce, may be required to contribute to their cost and upkeep. Common carriers for hire, who make the highways their place of business, may properly be charged an extra tax for such use."

Another significant statement from the supreme bench reads:

"With the increase in number and size of the vehicles used upon a highway, both the danger and the wear and tear grow. To exclude unnecessary vehicles particularly the large ones commonly used by carriers for hire - promotes both safety and economy. State regulation of that character is valid even as applied to interstate commerce in the absence of regulation by congress which deals specifically with the subject."

Complete regulation of bus and truck traffic on public highways is as inevitable as the change of the seasons. Regulation is a stage in the evolution of a utility. The public is demanding it, the courts are anxious to have legislative terms defined, and the lawmakers are discussing it. In due time it will be forthcoming.

Representative Lamneck, of this state, has made public a letter to President Hoover in which he asks the President if he would sign a bill legalizing the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer, if such a measure were to be enacted by congress. Cheap stuff, that, asking a man in high office to cross a bridge before he comes to it. A president has enough real problems to answer without loading him down with hypothetical.

There are said to be 500 Russians in the United States who are here unlawfully, and are not deported because the department of labor doesn't want to send them to what, in many cases, would mean certain death. This attitude on the part of the department is hardly in line with the stories of brutality reported by the Wickersham commission on the investigation of one of its members.

Herndon and Pangborn, the American aviators, have been given their liberty by the Nipponese authorities, the pictures taken by them having been found, in the main, harmless. A few photographs, however, showed views of a fortified area near Hakodate. The Americans explained that they took the view because they were picturesque, not knowing that they were in a fortified area, which explanation was accepted, and another "incident" may be taken as good as closed.

Rev. O. B. Poulson, chaplain of the Pennsylvania house of representatives, forecasts the ultimate success of prohibition. "Reforms never go backward," he says. "We are centuries beyond the days of crucifixion and human sacrifice. This age is totally ignorant of chattel slavery, and the next generation will never have seen a legalized saloon." All right, Mr. Paulson; hustle the thing along! There's no getting away from the fact that this transition period from booze to prohibition is mighty trying!

With work on the Hoover dam project far ahead of schedule and applicants for jobs many, the 1,400 men who went out on a strike there last week, when they sought to fix the pay, the hours of work, the conditions in which they were to be housed, the cost of meals and their demands were refused, do not appear to have chosen the psychological time for their attempt to run the undertaking.

Chairman A. Moore Hogarth, of the British College of Pestology, says that insects will conquer man and the world. "Insects are establishing such a stronghold that one day man will wake up to find that he has met his master," he goes on to explain. Maybe so, but they have been at it for millions of years, even longer than the doom of the world from them or some other cause has been predicted, and man is still here. The explanation is that all these specialists take that in which they specialize somewhat too seriously.

Editorial Opinion.

AN EXPERIMENT WORTH TRYING.

Reduction in the state budget seems to be welcome everywhere but in Columbus, where the state government is regarded as the greatest local industry. Merchants and landlords are complaining, while the newspapers are inclined to regard the economy policy as unwise.

A fair test of this policy will be afforded by the results.

If the state government fails to function as it should and to perform the services expected of it because of a reduced number of state employes and insufficient appropriations, the policy adopted by the governor and the legislature will be adjudged unwise and steps taken to provide the revenues needed to restore the budget to the 1929 30 figure.

If, on the other hand, the state government functions smoothly and well; if with its reduced income it is still able to perform the expected services, even though certain state employes are forced to work a little harder, the fiscal difficulties of 1931 which forced the economy upon the state will prove a blessing in disguise.

For a generation there has been talk of the high cost of government and of the necessity of curbing it. But until revenues began to shrink nothing was done. With reorganization of Ohio's fiscal system this year and the increasing difficulty of tax collection a program of drastic economy became necessary. Depression made its inexpedient to impose heavier taxes on major industries.

The economy experiment is well worth trying. If every one from department heads down to clerks and stenographers do their best, it will succeed. The reduction in costs of the state government may then become permanent and will be a boon.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

RECKLESS DRIVING A CRIME.

The state of Michigan has lost patience with drivers who are a menace to public safety. In a new statute it has decreed that "every person who drives any vehicle upon a highway carelessly and heedlessly, in wilful and wanton disregard of the rights or safety of others and at a speed or in a manner so as to endanger any person or property and thereby injure so as to cripple any person, but not cause death," shall be brought to trial under criminal charges. Maximum punishment is fixed at two years' imprisonment or a fine of $1,000, or both. That ought to catch not only the drunken driver, but the fellow who acts very much like him on a public thoroughfare. It is a straw to show the way the wind is blowing in the matter of dealing with irresponsible motorists.—Kansas City Star.

Safeguarding a Nation's Health.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

In ancient Venice and other great seaports, a vessel arriving with diseased passengers was detained for a period of forty days. This practice gave rise to the term "quarantine," which comes from an Italian word "quaranta," meaning "forty."

There are many kinds of quarantine—house quarantine, cattle-quarantine, interstate quarantine, etc. All are related to the prevention and spread of disease.

The United States public health service announces that within the past year no infectious diseases were brought into this country. This excellent work on the part of the immigration service deserves more than passing comment. The health of the nation depends to a great extent upon the thoroughness with which these duties are performed.

Wenever a vessel enters a port of the United States, rigid inquiry is made as to the state of health on board ship. During the past year four vessels arrived at ports of the United States carrying infectious diseases. Smallpox and cerebro spinal meningitis were the diseases. When the ship bearing the passengers came into quarantine, the infected passengers were removed. Those who had been in contact with the disease were detained for observation. In consequence no contagious disease was brought into the country.

In addition to this great work, the immigration service conducts medical examinations of all persons applying for entrance into the United States. Undesirable emigrants who would be a menace to the health of the nation are thus prevented from entering the country.

During 1930, 156,370 persons were examined abroad. More than 20,000 of these were found to have either mental or physical defects. More than 8,000 were refused passports because of medical reasons. Of the 147,762 who were given passports and who arrived at quarantine, only twenty-three were sent back because of some medical defect.

If we would give the same attention to private health, we would be wise indeed. Every country that guards its citizens against needless disease is making the best possible investment.—Copyright, 1931, by Newpaper Feature Service, Inc.

What Will Better Marion?

The following is the answer of one citizen to the question, "What Will Better Marion?"—the second in the questionnaire circulated by Dr. Carl W. Sawyer to get a comprehensive insight into the community feeling regarding our home city, in the hope of arriving at a remedy, for handicaps, if any, from which Marion may suffer. From day to day, answers of various citizens to the same question will be given publicity on this page.

1. Diversified industries which will insure labor for part of our people all of the time.
2. The induction of outside capital for financing some of our larger business property loans. This will relieve our building and loan companies of some of their heavier loans and they will have money for the home owner and those who have a little money and would become buyers of property.
3. An educational program that will show the installment buyer the high rate of interest he is paying. Too much credit is the curse of the working man and the man of moderate means. I venture to say that the wages and earnings of our people of moderate means are hypothicated for the next eighteen months

The First Astronomers.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

Among the early Greek philosophers, theories of the cosmos were largely in the nature of speculation. This idea and that notion were played with, but there was little in the way of concrete knowledge on which to base these different theories. Both Plato and Aristotle took over from the Pythagoreans the belief in a spherical immovable earth which was situated at the center of the universe.

A real beginning at scientific investigation, as pointed out by Hector Macpherson in "Modern Cosmologies, was made by Eudoxus, of Cnidus. He introduced the inductive method of studying the cosmos, and thus laid the foundation of scientific procedure. He believed that the way to arrive at the truth was not to theorize aimlessly, but to base theories upon actual observation of the heavens. He put forward a theory of concentric spheres; but it is not certain whether he believed that this was an actual mechanism or only a convenient working hypothesis. It is possible that Eudoxus merely regarded his spheres as geometrical constructions suitable for computing the apparent paths of the planets.

It is very difficult to convey an adequate notion of this highly complicated system of Eudoxus. But he did believe that each celestial body was situated in the equator of a sphere revolving with uniform velocity around its poles. But in order to provide for other irregularities and complications, he assumed the existence of other spheres, rotating around their own poles, and also that these poles were rotating around other and still larger spheres. One sphere was sufficient to take care of the fixed stars. Three spheres provided for the motion of sun and moon. But it required four spheres for each of the planets. In all, Eudoxus used twenty-seven spheres.

Complicated indeed the system was. And yet it is remarkable how well, all things considered, it accounted for the observed celestial motions. Of course Eudoxus had very imperfect observational data to rely upon. And yet his system roughly filled the bill, save in the case of Venus and Mars. Some thirty years later another scientific observer, Calippus, one of the pupils of Eudoxus, proceeded to make a scientific generalization, adding more spheres to the system of Eudoxus, in order to take care of irregularities formerly unexplained.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

Slavery in the Northwest Territory.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

Ohio came nearer to following the injunction of the old ordinance of 1787 that there should be neither slavery nor involuntary servitude except as punishment for crime in any of the states created out of the Northwest territory than either Indiana or Illinois, but the restriction was not absolutely conformed to here.

There were slavery advocates in the constitutional convention that met at Chillicothe in 1802 to frame the first constitution. It was not at all accepted as a certainty that Ohio would come in as a non-slave state, as is shown by the fact that James Kilbourne, who was on the ground with authority to buy a township for an organized colonization company of anti-slavery people in Massachusetts, delayed making his purchase after he had selected the site at Worthington, until the constitutional convention had concluded its work and inserted an anti-slavery provision.

That the pro-slavery element in the convention was strong is shown by the fact that a proposition to provide for a modified form of slavery was defeated in it but by a single vote. And in spite of the anti-slavery provision in the constitution the legislature proceeded to provide a law by which free persons of color coming into the state must give bond in the sum of $500 that they would not become a charge on the public; and failing to do that their services, not the colored person himself, it will be noted, might be sold to the highest bidder, the buyer being held to house and subsist the person whose services he had bought. It requires careful distinction to regard that as anything else than slavery.

No slaves came over in Ohio as the property of former French or British citizens to be covered by treaty provisions, as was the case in both Indiana and Illinois. Indiana, like Ohio, refused to put a slavery provision in her constitution, but Illinois provided for a modified form of slavery in her constitution and congress did not reject the constitution and bar the state from admission to the union on that account.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. William Chard residing two miles south of Marion.

The Erie gave notice that it would double track its line for fifty-two miles out of this city.

Although the batting was even and Marion played a better fielding game, luck broke with the visitors and Piqua won, four to three.

The public utilities commission granted the Marion Water company the right to issue bonds to pay for needed extensions.

Misses Louise and Grace Cunningham gave a dinner party at their home on Mt. Vernon avenue in honor of a number of school teachers who were soon to leave Marion to take positions elsewhere.

At Deauville.

BY O. O. M'INTYRE.

Deauville, Aug 11—One of those fierce little put-putting motor boats scooted us from Havre across the harbor to Deauville this morning in forty-five minutes. By auto it is fifty miles. Most of the way it was a choking fog, but finally we emerged into a fair and vista of white cliffs, silver sand and rose clad villas.

Deauville is a Normandy coast resort where the big idea is to be seen. A day is a succession of horseback riding, tennis, golf, bathing, lunching al fresco, polo, pigeon shooting and gambling at the casino at night. It has the "prop" look of a motion picture.

At the moment the season is in full swing and the beach and promenade are rainbowed with bathing costumes and pajamas. Le Touquet has lured many of Deauvill's faithful and the rivalry between them is keen. As a result rate cutting at hotels is giving the summer a slight break.

Having left Havre at 6.45 a. m. without breakfast we went directly to the Normandy hotel, an autumnal brown structure flashing with awnings, for a bite. At a nearby table sat two young men in peach-toned pajamas. I wondered if they had just got up or were just going to bed.

While waiting for the food—and I think the waiter slipped off to Paris for it—I was almost tempted to dig out the red and yellow pajamas I picked up at a Galeries Lafayette sale, send them over to the young sprigs with a note "Match these, Messieurs."

The irritation of a long wait for breakfast vanished with its arrival. It was the best I ever ate on the continent and not only that I was introduced socially to a new-fangled melon spoon—a sort of miniature post hole digger that brought out the mellon in delicious cubes.

The mellon itself was snuggled in a mountain of ice in a silver dish and wreathed with a dewey garland of vari-colored rose buds. With the eggs came a cup in frosted Lalique and a silver gadget for snipping off egg ends so one might eat them out of the shell

One sees on the streets of Deauville more jewelry than may be seen in the windows of the jewelry establishments along the entire Rue de la Paix. Peggy Joyce here, fully bediamonded, would be just another tourist. I saw pendants that, as Will Hogg might say "would stop a cow." And along La Plage Fleurie was a lady in a snip of a bathing suit whose arms were covered to elbows in jeweled bracelets.

During a before-luncheon motor spin, I saw a polo player with a full crop of whiskers. He was indulging morning practice and the way his foliage was buzzing in the breeze was comical, no end. Also what-ho! And frightfully jolly.

Signing a hotel register in France requires more than name and home city. They give you a slip upon which you must tell all—age, birthplace, date of birth, occupation, passport number, how long you expect to remain, etc., etc. A transcript goes to the prefect of police. Deauville, because of its pleasure-loving patronage, is a Mecca for gentlemen of flexible morals and ladies of easy virtues. Consequently register blanks are particularly searching. As I was remaining only until midnight when the prefect receives the slips I decided to give him a surprise. After occupation I put "American gangster." Answering "Object of visit," I wrote "Assassination of the chief of police." Then I signed "Courtney Ryley Cooper and a strange woman—Idaho Springs, Colorado"—which will be dandy for the real Coopers when they arrive later this season.

The Casino in the moonlight with clipped hedges, flower-starred terraces and gleaming white walks is an enticing picture. It is a one-storied structure with a circular room at each end—suggesting a dumbbell. Inside is the usual gaiety of lights of every gambling-house. I am told that when play lags in European casinos lights are increased. They stimulate play. The usual feverish crowd, too, was there—eager, taut, astonishly rude.

• • •

My luck at gambling over here is excellent had I the sense to quit. But only once after a winning number did I romp off with my winnings. Tonight I could have paid my boat fare home had I taken my wife's advice. But I became a plunger and all of it vanished with more. Just one of the bright boys who help to put the "dough" in Deauville!—Copyright, 1931, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Aug. 11—That "Grand Old Man of the supreme court—Oliver Wendell Holmes now in his ninetieth year—must have felt a thrill of pride if he read the newspapers of a few days ago.

For there was reported the fact that Harvey H. Bundy, of Boston, had that day been sworn in as assistant secretary of state.

Bundy is one of Justice Holmes' proteges. Back in 1914, Bundy, then a youth of twenty-six, and just graduated from the Harvard Law school, came down to Washington to serve as law clerk and secretary to Justice Holmes.

It has long been the custom of the venerable supreme court justice to choose as his helper each year an honor man in the Harvard Law school graduating class. Bundy won this distinction and from 1914 to 1915 worked side by side with Justice Holmes.

• • •

But it was a far cry for Bundy from the position of law clerk to the position he now holds.

However, he made it in just seventeen years.

During that time, while engaged in the practice of law, he found time for other activities that brought him to the attention of President Hoover. Particularly, as assistant counsel of the food administration under Hoover for two years, the two were closely associated.

It is generally believed in Washington that this contact led the President to bring Bundy to Washington to take over the post vacated by another close Hoover friend—William Castle—when Castle was elevated to undersecretary of state

Just past his forty-third birthday, the new assistant secretary of state is a tall, blond, bespectacled and handsome man. His dark mustache makes him appear more serious than he really is.

As a matter of fact, his actions on the day he was sworn in impressed every one present that cheerfulness and a willingness to oblige are his outstanding traits.

• • •

For on that day news photographers who had been on his trail for two months, finding him, clamored for pictures. Immediately he assented. At his desk he sat posing in all sorts of positions.

Just when it seemed as if his patience was about exhausted, in trooped the professional cameramen. More posing — in even more numerous positions

Finally it was all over. Weary, hot and exhausted, he arose, and smilingly addressed them.

"Gentlemen, I trust you are through

"Of one thing I am sure. You have taken enough pictures this morning to last through all my official life"

Not So You Can Notice It.

GOOD CAST FOR OHIO FILM

Sounds like a stellar cast of commedians and commediennes in "Don't Bet on Women," playing at the Ohio Wednesday and Thursday. Edmund Lowe, Jeanette MacDonald, blue-ribbon Roland Young, J. M. Kerrigan and Una Merkel make up the principals with Lowe and Miss MacDonald featured. Miss Merkel was the lovely Ann Rutledge of "Abraham Lincoln." Her soft southern accent has been the inspiration of yards and yards of press publicity for her. One of the catch-lines of the advertising is "One man bet on women; another against them both lost!"

CHEVALIERS PICTURE BIG HIT AT PALACE

Chevalier and Herr Lubitsch hit a new high note in talking pictures with "The Smiling Lieutenant," playing at the Palace tonight and Wednesday. Vienna takes on a new glamour under the master touches of this utterly charming French actor and the wizardry and directorial mastership of Lubitsch. "The Smiling Lieutenant" is racy, and risque, but no one could look down his nose for a moment with Chevalier's smile bubbling up and with Claudette Colbert and Miriam Hopkins doing the best work of their careers. Chevalier is an officer of the guard, in love with Colbert, a violinist in a girls orchestra. When George Barbier, a visiting king and his dowdy daughter Hopkins, arrive in Vienna, Chevalier and his company are called out for duty. Chevalier smiles and winks at Colbert standing across the street, and the princess thinks he's making fun of her. From then on, whisked into a royal wedding, Chevalier and his mistress and his princess lead a whirlwind life. To add to the program's complete enjoyment Mickey Mouse presents his latest comedy, "Mickey Steps Out." A newsreel and travel feature complete the bill.

And so she had not said, "Until we have had our talk," but, "Until I go"

"Till you go where young woman?"

"Back to the Tijon"

"You aren't going back to the Tijon The first thing I know the marquesa will be away with you She's smelling mice around here as it is but can't tell which mouse smells the worst—Adrian or me The only place you're going from here is to the parsonage — next door to my house in New Orleans Old Dr Bruce is the only man you're going to see if I have anything to do with it"

But she had said again, "Please wait, Kirk, dear For the ring I mean" Had said it so earnestly that he had promised, smiling a little holding her close "I'll wait, Juanita."

Juanita started Lorena was knocking at her door Mrs Belaise wanted to see her

Juanita said she would come She had not wanted Kirk to tell Nelly but he had begged. Nelly would be glad He quite overlooked the fact that their engagement was not a reality, and would not be until after she had talked with him—if then. There were no doubts in Kirk's mind as to himself or Nelly Yet Juanita knew that even though Kirk's blindness might carry him to foolish lengths, Nelly would see clearly where Kirk was concerned

"And I want them to see clearly" Juanita told herself "But I'd like a little happiness—just for today"

Talking with Nelly took the fairy tale out of it. And all too soon.

Juanita smoothed her hair rumpled by Kirk's caresses, dabbed powder about her eyes that had so lately known tears, went down the hall

Nelly was all aglow. She folded Juanita in frail, lacy arms. "I'm so happy" she said "I'm as happy as Kirk"

Kirk reached home early and went upstairs to dress—knickerbockers and sweater wool stockings and light-weight leather coat, the proper regalia for Tarpon Point for which they would start at 5 o'clock He hurried down to the library that he might be there when Juanita came

All the way home his thoughts had been with that meeting, not because of what she might have to tell him but merely because he would see her again, hold her in his arms realize more fully perhaps that she was his The outcome of the morning had surprised him as much as it had her All day he had felt a pounding and stinging in his veins How he had managed to accomplish anything was a mystery Luckily, the office had sort of run itself

Kirk got a book and went over to the window seat The book was Mrs Browning's poems He turned to "Lord Walter's Wife" the poem Juanita had mentioned at Caprice

"But why do you go?" said the lady,
As both sat under the yew,
And her eyes were alive in their depths
Like the bracken beneath the sea blue
"Because I fear you" he answered.
"Because you are far too fair
And able to strangle my soul"

Kirk read the poem through

"Why the darned thing's written to prove we can be true if we want to" he thought "If I don't confront Juanita with this" He took out his pencil and began to mark certain of the verses He looked at his watch Five minutes of four Some one came in from the hall

It was Adrian Kirk had spoken to him on the stair a moment before Adrian had asked if Kirk thought it was going to rain It was like him, Kirk thought, to invade the library at this time. Kirk rose He would be in the hall when Juanita came down the stair They would go into the garden . . Juanita, however, might not come down the stair, but by way of the veranda, through one of the long French windows from which Adrian stared so unhappily at the darkened sky Kirk sat down again When Juanita entered, they would bolt.

"Don't let the weather rumple you" he said to Adrian. "Tarpon point's polly when it rains"

"The weather?" Adrian turned hands in his pockets "Senorita Flores is engaged," he said abruptly

"That so?" Kirk answered after a pause, his pencil moving beneath a line. How had that got out so soon? He looked up "Did she tell you?" he asked

Adrian shook his head "I have not seen her today, except at lunch It was my mother told me Nelly told her Last night the marquesa gave my mother the particulars Senorita Flores is engaged to a nobleman in Barcelona"

Kirk looked down at his book So that was what she had had to tell him "Barcelona's a long way off" he said "The ocean to cross and all Spain If I remember my geography You going to let that stop you?"

Adrian thought "She's told him herself" But had she told him all? "Senorita Flores is not only engaged" said Adrian "but she is in debt to this man—for her education her clothes, her travels Whoever else should marry her would have to assume that obligation It is so stipulated

"Why now you no longer are fair!
Why now you no longer are fatal,
But ugly and hateful, I swear"

"Good you found out in time," said Kirk

Adrian nodded "Suppose I had proposed and been accepted?" he remarked "I thought you should know also Nelly told my mother that you had not been told"

Kirk thanked him and Adrian sauntered out through the French windows, down into the garden

Kirk went to the hall door There was no sign of Juanita He waited until 10 minutes after the hour when they were to meet in the porte cochere for the drive to Tarpon point.

There he found her, on the front seat of Adrian's sedan, Adrian beside her She smiled gayly at Kirk buttoning the collar of her brown suede coat, pulling her russet cap down around her ears Kirk's smile was less spontaneous as he climbed in beside the marquesa, among the wraps and umbrellas that had been provided against cold or rain Madame Fouche and Nelly waved to them as they rode away

It was not until they reached Tarpon Point and were going up the steps of Steve's place that Kirk managed a word with Juanita alone.

"You didn't come to the library What was the matter?"

"I came," she answered. "Adrian was there. I'll see you tomorrow"

Kirk was aware that she had been glad to turn back at the door – thankful to Adrian for furnishing this brief reprieve.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TODAY was Tuesday, and when I got awake and laid there with Jubilee doing a little thinking it was a good joke on me, and a good one on my ant, because she hadn't washed me Sunday morning and both of us had forgot all about it. That was the first time that had ever happened Then my mother noticed that Annabelle Lee's highchair was right between the pushbutton where the lightning came out of and the water pitcher which it melted the holes in, and if Annabelle Lee was all right He high chair the lightning would have went right through her, and little girls don't melt so it would of burnt a hole through her When my mother thought about that she made so much fuss that my grandfater had to put his arms around her and hug her up tight and pat her on the back and tell her that Annabellee Lee was all right He told her probably the lightning would have went around her to get past, and then he looked up at the pitcher that my father has put up on the clock shelf and is going to keep forever, and said, "By golly, I don't believe it; it never happened It couldn't" I brang the pitcher out to the steps to show it to the bunch and they all put their fingers through the holes and made eyes at it.

When I had fed my face and we had went to the pasture and got back, there was Frenchy's father working in our back yard. He told my mother that he was going to invite us all to his house to eat some barbecued chicken, and then he thought that if my mother ever et any she would want to know how to make it, so he brang a load of bricks and was making a barbecu pit in our back yard. We all stuck around and was going to help him but when I went to paint the Lost Bag of ripe with a handful of mortar and he ducked and it hit Frenchy's father in the whiskers he told Frenchy something in French, and Frenchy said for us to come over to the hill lot and he would tell us what it was. So when we had got over there he said that his father told him if he didn't get us away from where he was working he would skin him and would stretch his skin on a board to dry like a muskrat's. Fattie said nobody would skin her, so her and [illegible] and Maggie went back.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Veritzen Tells Madge That His Romance Interest in Her Is but a "Memory!"

ONE cannot judge Philip Veritzen by the ordinary standards of men His whole being is so imbued with the histrionism which has made him the most artistic dramatic producer of his day that his friends and professional associates know that he can say nothing do nothing without having about it a savor of the theatrical

I had to remind myself of this firmly when he uttered the flamboyant speech concerning my meaning to him "all that was lovely and desirable in womanhood" Despite his disclaimer that he was speaking in the past, not the present, his voice was so tenderly earnest, his eyes so lambent with emotion real or stimulated, that I found myself divided between a fear that the old annoyance was to begin all over again and a thrill of gratified vanity of which I was ashamed

I Know Now

"You always will be that to me" the deep organ-like voice went on "I am a better man for having known your sweetness and your divine charity. But my desire, and my endeavor to win you for my own were predicated upon my belief that your love for your husband was not the great passion of your life I admit I was vain enough mad enough to believe that I might some time be able to show you what a love like mine could mean But I know now have known since last Christmas night that my dreams were vain ones that all your heart is given to your husband, and that for the remainder of my life I shall live only in my memories as an old man must

A Pledge

He believed it himself while he was speaking Perhaps the illusion might last until his voice ceased to carom around the room For the fraction of a second with the spell of that wonderful voice upon me, I thrilled to the belief, one of the headiest which a woman can have that a man for whom many women have languished is eating his heart out for love of her But it was for the veriest fraction of a second that the belief imposed upon me by his matchless acting deluded me Then I realized with what magnificent self hypnotism he was playing his role, throwing himself so firmly into the part, that while he was speaking he was the man he believed himself to be I never had been "the love affair of his life" or any of the other high-sounding terms he had pressed into service He had been strongly attracted to me certainly, since our first meeting It would have been ridiculous for me to deny that, but the romance of that attraction had speedily died when he discovered that what Lillian had called the "Madonna motif" was to be the "theme song" of my life during the next few years

With the knowledge of all this effectually bundling my vanity into deserved punishment, I began to be mildly curious as to the manner in which my former employer would get himself back to earth after his "altitude flight" as I know Dicky would term the theatrical speeches which he had just uttered That he would find a practical parachute however, I was certain, and was therefore not surprised when after pausing for a moment he completely changed both tone and tempo

"But you may rest assured of one thing my dear friend" he said, "if our long association permits me to call you by that name"

He cocked an inquiring eye at me, and I muttered a hasty assenting "of course" which evidently satisfied him, for he went on with the smoothness of an actor letter-perfect in his part.

"I never shall trouble you again with this very special personal feeling of mine for you, which I have sworn never to voice again It shall be put away in lavender and rose petals for the rest of my life Our association begins today upon a new note, that of personal friendly comradeship combined with the strictly professional association of playwright and producer.

He paused and raised his hand in a curious little gesture as if he were drinking a toast.

"I pledge you now," he said, "that never shall you be annoyed by my sounding any note other than sense. Will this make it easier for you to work with me in the close companionship that must be ours when I am producing a play of yours?"

It was no time for hedging, for hypocritical assurances that he had not annoyed me. I looked straight at him as I replied:

"Yes, it will make it easier for me," I said. "Thank you so much for your assurance of this."

Was it relief or chagrin that I saw in his eyes for the fraction of an instant following my little speech? I could not tell and I told myself whimsically that in the words of the immortal Bunker Bean, "I could think of nothing of less consequence"

He Hears the Act

"That is settled then" he said briskly and unfolded the manuscript which he had kept in his hands while he talked

"Are you equal to reading this aloud to me or are you too tired?"

"I don't feel tired," I said truthfully, "and I shall be very glad to read it to you"

He handed me back the manuscript and I began to read the lines I had dictated with such haste the preceding night He listened with no word of comment whatever until I had finished the reading of the act His eyes had been fixed on space and I knew enough of his methods to realize that his trained mind was visualizing the act as a whole and seeing the characters as plainly as if they were before him in the flesh

When the last speech was finished and I had uttered the word "curtain" he waited for a long second and then with no word of commendation or disapproval said imperatively "Will you please go back to the entrance of Vickers and read on again from there?"

On mother's promise of a good supper and forgiveness they came down.

WHEN $50,000 WENT UP IN SMOKE

Seven thousand gallons of oil, valued at $50,000, were destroyed in this raging fire at Warren, Pa., when four huge tanks of the United Crude Oil refinery went up in flames and smoke. The billowing clouds of smoke were visible for 30 miles. Emergency firemen from neighboring oil plants aided the Warren fire-fighters in battling the disastrous blaze. Photo was made at height of the conflagration.

MAN WITHOUT A COUNTRY

Peter Russell, the man without a country, is shown at right, listening to Immigration Inspector Joseph V. Mitchell, at Boston, denying him permission to land in this country on the ground that Russell is a British subject. The British authorities, however, have just returned him to this country as an American citizen. Now that both countries refuse him, Russell may be forced to spend his life on the ocean. He is a fireman on the S. S. Winona County, out of Liverpool.

Ohio's New Tax Laws

This is the first of a series of articles by International News Service, explaining the new taxation laws adopted by the Ohio 89th general assembly.

• • •

A NEW year's gift for county treasuries, which are often empty at the start of the calendar year, was provided when the 89th general assembly boosted automobile license taxes and removed motor vehicles from the personal property tax duplicate.

On Jan. 1, or a few days later, county treasuries will be paid their share of motor vehicle license money collected during December under the plan being worked out by Chalmers R. Wilson, state commissioner of motor vehicles.

To teach employes in his department to handle the money swiftly and to arrange for distribution at once, Commissioner Wilson is planning a "taxation school," he said.

Under the old plan the automobile license money was not distributed for several weeks, according to Wilson.

The fact that motor vehicle license fees were almost doubled means that each county will get approximately twice as much as it received under the old law.

Because automobile and truck owners buy 80 per cent of their tags during the first two months the tags are on sale—December and January—most of the money will be available at the start of the year, when treasuries are almost depleted and facing calls from subdivisions for advances, it was said. A total of almost $24,000,000 is expected to be collected.

The Stars Say—

For Wedesday, Aug. 12

A DAY of great importance and splendid opportunity for success, progress and the gratifying fruition of cherished plans and ambitions is read from the generally propitious planetary auspices. There may be a subtle precipitation of affairs of far-reaching effect on the environment as well as on the social prestige and economic stability. Corporations, secret agreements, adroit moves or diplomatic understandings may loom large in the day's achievements, but sign papers cautiously.

Those whoso birthday it is are on the eve of a year of surprising and furtive developments in the affairs which may have an important influence upon the whole future life, position and environment. There may be excellent offers or opportunities with great corporations, secret societies or intrigues or quiet agreements with such, but sign all writings with precaution lest there be misunderstanding. A child born on this day should be enterprising, aggressive, ambitious and should rise to gratifying heights by its own efficiency and executive ability.

Presbies Certain of Tie for S. S. League Championship

PITTSBURGH PIRATES WIN ONLY START IN MAJOR LEAGUES 4-3

Buccaneers Score Tying Run in Eighth, Beat Cubs in Ninth Frame.

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer.

The Pittsburgh Pirates have no hope of winning a National league pennant just at present but they evidently still are of the opinion that they can smash their way into the first division before the curtain falls for the season.

After three months of floundering around while their pitchers tried to find their effectiveness and their batsmen searched vainly for their batting eyes, the Pirates pulled themselves together just when it looked like they were going to fall right out of the league. The insertion of Howard Groskloss, at second base, the return to hitting form of Paul Waner and the overnight development of Glenn Spencer into a starting pitcher who could win were three primary causes for the Pirates' spurt since July.

Yesterday with Spencer working on the mound, the Pirates nosed out the Chicago Cubs, 4-3, scoring the tying run in the eighth inning and the winning run in the ninth when Lloyd Waner walked and came home on a double by Pie Traynor.

The defeat dropped the Cubs from a virtual tie with the second place New York Giants to a position half a game removed from the runner-up rung.

The Pirate-Cub game was the only one on the major league schedule yesterday as both leagues prepared for intersectional warfare starting today.

SPORTS

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK

HERE'S the first one! Every year there is at least half a dozen which find their way to the desk of the sports editor. Each one is the "best possible." (If you don't think so ask the picker.) I'm speaking of all-city recreation baseball teams, if you haven't guessed it already.

The first all-city selection was delivered yesterday. Just to get a lot of good arguments going in the downtown bleachers I'm printing it here. It isn't the official all-city team, that is it isn't for anyone but the picker. Who the individual is that picked the team, I won't reveal. Only a desire to stop possible bloodshed at the hands of some of those left off the list keeps me from printing it.

• • •

The players are listed in the position of batting. There is no second choice, meaning I take it, that you either can play ball or you cannot!

Cram, (Bishops and Huber) 1b.; Robbins, (Calvary and Roundhouse) cf.; Marshall, (Lee street and Serv-U-Wel) ss.; Gallant, (Presbyterians) 3b; Niemeyer, (Calvary, Gasco club) rf.; Cunningham, (Presbyterians) 2b.; Myron Gibson, (Calvary and Huber) lf.; Johnson, (Prospect) c.; Gunder, (St Mary and Kappas) p., and Gamble, (Epworth No. 1 and C., D. & M.) p.

• • •

Start the anvil chorus! I don't care what you think of it. Personally, I think at least two of them won't get a look in on the official team. But if you have a better one, in your own opinion of course, send it in. I'll print it for you.

• • •

The following is solely for the information of those individuals who dote on gathering statistics. It concerns a young softball pitcher doing his flinging under the colors of First Reformed Sunday school, Dale Schwaderer by name.

Playing with a second division team that all season has afforded him little less than terrible support, Schwaderer has compiled a noteworthy record. He has occupied the mound for Reformed in 54 innings and there have been just 23 runs to be scored off him both earned and unearned. Aside from this he has sent 75 men to the bench via the three strikes route.

And if you ask me, or if you don't for that matter, such a record is not something to be laughed at. There are a lot of teams that would like to have a pitcher of this calibre hanging around where he could be beckoned to the knoll. Yes sir, plenty of them.

• • •

According to a press dispatch yesterday an umpire was stabbed seriously during a free-for-all following a baseball game. Maybe I shouldn't mention this right at this time but somehow or other I can't help admitting that I don't feel so good since I read that little item. I'm afraid it may put some new ideas in local craniums.

RESULTS YESTERDAY

Presbyterians 8, St. Paul Lutheran 1; United Brethren 15, Wesley M. E. 2; Forest Lawn 8, Christian No. 1, 4; First Reformed vs. Christian Seniors postponed.

• • •

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

WITH the exception of a few postponed games the playing season of the No 2 Sunday school circuit was brought to a close yesterday. The Presbyterians are leading the race at this point by two full games but unfortunately for them, the team that is nearest them has two postponed games to play, making possible a tie for first in case the second placers win both of their games.

The Christian Seniors are in second place. They have yet to play First Reformed and First Presbyterian, the latter the leader. These games will probably be played off next week.

The First Presbyterians assured themselves of nothing worse than a tie for first place yesterday by shelling the offerings of Don. Lindsey for 14 hits while Don. Shoemaker, Presbie hurler, was allowing only a pair of safeties for the St. Paul nine. B. Strine and D. Lindsey were the only two St. Paul batters to get anything like a safe hit.

Presbies Hit Hard

The Presbyterians on the other hand were hitting just about everything Lindsey could get across the plate. Pohler clouted a homer, Herring collected a double and triple in three times up and Zahn smacked out a pair of doubles in three attempts. Lindsey bested Shoemaker in only one phase of the game, striking out six men to five for the winning pitcher.

Forest Lawn Presbyterians boosted their won and lost percentage to an even 500 for the season when they pounded the slants of Roscoe Rank all over the lot to gain an 8-4 victory. Rank wasn't up to his usual form yesterday his tosses being hit freely throughout the entire game. Ward, Converse and Shields all connected for four base hits for Forest Lawn. These three homers were responsible for the scoring of all the winners' runs.

U. B. Comes to Life

If the United Brethren ball club had awakened to the fact earlier in the season that it could play at least better than average ball it would probably be in the first division now at the close of the season instead of reposing in sixth place. After dropping practically all of its first round games the U. B. team has come back with a rush, turning in a much better record for the second half of the season.

Dick Tuttle led the U. B. assault against Wesley M. E., banging out a pair of home runs and three singles in five trips to the plate. His brother, Bob, possibly irked at the thought of having younger brother get all the glory, also took it upon himself to smack out a circuit smash. He also drew three walks and hit a single in the other four times up. Zuspan, U. B. hurler, was hit rather freely by Wesley but got through without difficulty, keeping the hits scattered in good fashion.

Little World's Series To Open Monday, Aug. 24

Monday, August 24 has been the date tentative set for the opening at Lincoln park of the 1931 Little World's Series. The city softball commission set this date last night in its regular meeting, stating however that it will possibly be changed due to the playing off of several postponed games within the various leagues.

Aside from setting the tentative date for the opening of the championship series the commission acted on only one other matter of importance. The protest entered by Forest Lawn against the game played with First Presbyterians was disallowed. The Presbyterians won the game 2-1 but Forest Lawn questioned both the eligibility of one player and the ruling made on a play during the game.

A few other minor matters of business were disposed of by the board.

Advance in Tourney

Art Yazel and C. E. Jones were winners in week-end tennis matches of the Osgood Mfg. Co. tournament. The results were turned in too late for publication in Monday's Star. Yazel defeated Robert Jones 3-6, 6-3 and 6-2. C. E. Jones won from Charles Howison in straight sets 7-5 and 6-2. Dates for playing further matches in the tourney have not been set.

GABBY LOOKS AT CARDINALS

Team Works Together, Pilot Says, Explaining Why St. Louis Wins Championships.

SEES NO INDIVIDUAL STARS

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—There are no individual stars with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Anyone who thinks so has the word of Manager Gabby Street that it is a mistake.

"I believe we have a great ball club," said the Old Sergeant to a reporter who sought the secret of his success, "because it's not a one-man nor a three-man nor even a nine-man team.

"It's a 25-man team, that's what it is, and that's why it goes places."

His boys, Gabby confided, are convinced no other outfit has any license to beat them and sally forth to do battle on the diamond each afternoon with this notion firmly fixed in mind.

Injuries Spur Team

If a pitcher is lost to the team for a time, they win their share of games just the same. If a brilliant shortstop or second baseman is laid up with injuries, they continue to win. And if a hard-hitting outfilder is forced to the bench, the percentage column never seems to notice the difference.

"I guess it's just that when somebody's out the rest figure they have to play that much harder," Gabby said.

"We've been especially fortunate this year, too, in having about the best pitching anybody could ask."

"But the team's not hitting as well as last year?" the correspondent ventured.

Hitting Off

"No, we're not. But neither is anybody else, if you've noticed.

"Our team average is 25 or 30 points lower than a year ago, and it's due to the new ball. Not only can a pitcher put more stuff on it, but its comparative deadness gives him confidence.

"He thinks if he can get it over he has a good chance of getting the batter out. Last year he had a good chance of seeing it hit out of the park."

Several times the Cardinal management has engineered trades that had the fans wondering, as witness the shunting of Taylor Douthit to Cincinnati this year. To Street's way of thing this indicates another source of strength.

Mostly New Faces

"Look over the boys Ive got out there today," he urged. "Not more than two or three of 'em were on the pennant-winning team of 1926. Not more than four or five helped St Louis win the flag in 1928.

"The bosses of this club don't hesitate to make changes, injecting new blood and bringing up promising rookies from their minor league farms, if they think it will strengthen the team.

"The combination of youngsters and veterans works well- speed and enthusiasm plus experience and coolness under fire."

It was almost time to get out to the ball yard, and the old battery mate of Walter Johnson excused himself with a word of apology.

"Some people think I talk a lot, but I know we've got a great team - not just a collection of great players.

"I believe in those boys. And they believe in themselves."

SAINTS GAIN THOUGH HALTED BY WEATHER

Toledo Takes Another Beating To Dive Deeper into League Cellar.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug 11 — St. Paul's headlong rush toward the American Association championship has not cut down activity at the turnstiles, largely because every team in the league, except Toledo, has a chance to finish in the first division.

President Thomas Jefferson Hickey has made an informal check of attendance figures for the first two-thirds of the campaign, and has found that business to date has been considerably better than last season.

The Saints today were eleven games ahead of Indianapolis, while Toledo was a staggering eighth, with little chance of improving its position. The other six clubs Indianapolis, Louisville, Columbus, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, and Kansas City, however, were involved in an interesting battle for first division berths.

St. Paul gained a half game yesterday, although rain caused postponement of its engagement with Columbus. Indianapolis bowed to Kansas City in a night game, this boosting the Saints a little higher.

Milwaukee shoved Louisville a little farther back by hammering three Colonel hurlers for 14 hits and 4 to 2 victory.

Dutch Henry held Toledo to seven hits, helping Minneapolis to a 7 to 1 victory over the Hens.

Indianapolis made another one of those strong finishes but could not quite catch up, and Kansas City won, 7 to 5.

Racing Days Over

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 11—Mike Hall, winner of the $100,000 Agua Caliente handicap last March, probably will do no more racing. R. M. Eastman of Chicago, owner of the seven-year-old router, has decided to retire his star unless ailing tendons improve. Mike Hall was forced to pass up the $25,000 added Hawthorne handicap last Saturday because of injuries. He has not raced in form since winning the big purse in Mexico.

ALTROCK TO APPEAR AT GALION GAME

Baseball Comedian To Entertain Fans at Feature Diamond Fray.

Special to The Star

GALION, Aug. 10—Nick Altrock, well-known comedian of the Washington baseball club and the baseball game between Galion and Jack Graney's Night Hawks of Cleveland will be the special features of the Athletic day of the Galion Centennial celebration Wednesday, Aug. 26, at Heise park.

Invitations have been issued to all Consolidated high schools of Crawford county together with Bucyrus High, Crestline High and Galion, to take part in the activities planned for that day. The program will open at 10 a. m. and will include tennis tournaments, horseshoe pitching, a soft ball game between Galion and Bucyrus, volley ball, foul shooting contest and other out-of-door sports. All contestants will be invited to attend the feature baseball game in the afternoon.

Thomas R. Daugherty is general chairman of the committee in charge of the activities of the day.

Roy Parmelee farmed out by the New York Giants to Columbus in the American association thinks it unlucky to keep his eye on the plate as he delivers the ball. Ball players say the belief hurts his effectiveness.

NEDDA GUY LIKELY FAVORITE TO TAKE HAMBLETONIAN RACE

Classy Field of at Least Ten Expected To Start in Rich Race.

By The Associated Press

GOSHEN, N. Y., Aug. 11 The $60,000 Hambletonian, richest light harness horse stake in this country, is down for decision tomorrow with at least ten of the year's smartest three-year-old trotters slated to race for the big prize over the mile track at Good Time park.

Named for a great trotter the stake is the one race for which breeders and owners always point their best performers. Like many of the racers on the flat, the entries are made when the horses are foaled and the purses built up by added fees as the probable starters show improvement. The final payment of $500, due today, will determine how many will face the starter in the three-heat stake.

Although the Good Time stable's bay filly, Nedda Guy, with a mark of 2 03¾, probably will rule the favorite, at least five others have a large following. Walter Cox, veteran trainer of W. H. Cane's Good Time stable, has the filly in the best condition of her brilliant career.

Nedda Guy was beaten at Hartford last week but her conqueror, Protector, will not start in the Hambletonian. Calumet Bush is expected to be a strong contender on the basis of his workout of 2.02½, the fastest performance of the year by a three-year-old trotter. He was shipped to Goshen last week and turned another mile in 2 04½, the last quarter in 28 [illegible] seconds.

John M. Berry's bay colt, Keno of Rome, Ga., suddenly has jumped from one of the longshots to second choice. Just an ordinary two-year-old, Keno trotted a mile in 2 04 at Hartford's grand circuit meeting and has turned in several winning heats at close to the 2 [illegible] mark this year.

PLEASANT DEFEATS GREEN CAMP NINE

Pleasant Township Lutherans are runners-up for softball honors in the south section of the Marion county league as a result of having beaten Green Camp 4-0. Pleasant won on the strength of its battery which hammered in three runs during seven innings.

Caledonia and Morral M. E. of the north division are to play off for second place soon, the former having won from Martel on a forfeit last Saturday.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meat, Grain, Livestock

Markets were quiet today with dealers carrying fairly large supplies of vegetables and fruits. Prices showed little change from yesterday. Sweet corn continued plentiful and several dealers were asking as low as 15 cents a dozen today. The rain yesterday is said by growers to have been of great benefit to the late corn. Other green vegetables were not plentiful today. A few peas were on the market. The quality was only fair and dealers report few sales. Beans were also scarce.

Peaches were not plentiful today. What gave evidence of a surplus supply last week has become slightly less than a normal supply this week. A price of $1.45 a bushel is still being asked as a few of the earlier Ohio varieties appear on the market. Peaches in the lake orchards are said to be ripening rapidly and a general flood of fruits from this district is being looked for. Apples continue plentiful and prices of eight pounds for 25 cents was being asked by several dealers today.

GRAINS DROP IN LATE SALES

Initial Upturn Overcome by Later Downward Reaction of Prices.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 11—Grain prices averaged lower early today after an initial show of firmness that resulted from unlooked for upturns of Liverpool wheat quotations. A bearish construction put upon the United States government crop report as to wheat, however, led to enlarged selling, and so likewise the corn belt rains. Opening unchanged to ⅛ cents higher, wheat afterward underwent a general sag. Corn started ⅛ off to ⅛ up, and later declined all around.

An offset to strength shown in the Liverpool market was word that prices there were influenced chiefly by the smallest of the United States official estimate of domestic spring wheat production, whereas the magnitude of the United States winter yield was apparently lost sight of, meanwhile, a steadying factor in the Chicago wheat market was buying here against sales at Minneapolis to close spreads. Another report was that Russian advices indicated a smaller Russian wheat crop this season than last year, and that Germany's wheat crop was below her requirements.

Understanding that the U. S. government crop report as to corn was generally considered bullish, no increase of corn buying on that account was apparent. Favorable weather over the corn belt proved to be more than a counter balance. Field observers reported that rains had been heavy, and would bring about recovery from some of the losses indicated by the government report. Oats followed corn.

Three landowners on the Irvine single county ditch petitioned for by Ora B. Peters have filed notice of their intentions to appeal the decision of the county commissioners in allowing the ditch.

Henrietta V. Clixby, James Clixby and Edmund Conley have filed bond with County Auditor Karl Thomas pending the appeal of the case. The commissioners today filed all papers with Clerk of Court Everett B. Grigsby.

In the petition filed by the three landowners with the auditor, it is charged that the costs are greater than the benefits and a shorter and cheaper routing for the project is suggested. The petition charges that the commissioners had a financial interest in approving the ditch petition as they would receive $5 a day for each day's work spent in connection with the ditch.

Homer E. Johnson and C. E. Conley are the attorneys for the appealing parties.

Sues for Damages

Damages of $1,500 are asked by Joan Elizabeth Connolly, two, in a petition filed in common pleas court today by her next friend Beatrice Connolly, against David L. Sears.

The suit is the outgrowth of an automobile accident Oct. 11, 1930, on the Upper Sandusky road, five and a half miles north of Marion.

The petition says that the plaintiff received burns about the face which will result in permanent scars when the automobile driven by Sears struck a machine parked alongside the road. The child was a passenger in a car driven by Catherine Baney. The Baney machine was forced to park along the road after a tire blew out. The petition says fire starting from gasoline spilled in the crash resulted in the girl's burns.

The petition was filed by the law firm of Mouser, Young Mouser and Wiant.

Sues for Divorce

A divorce and the custody of two children are sought in a petition filed in common pleas court today by John A. Lather against Gladys Marie Lather. Neglect and cruelty are charged. The suit was filed by the law firm of Mouser, Young Mouser and Wiant.

Files Brief

The state industrial commission today filed a brief answering the motion of Harry E. Moore in his appeal action started in common pleas court.

Moore is seeking to have the action of the commission refusing him compensation for injuries received in 1927 reversed.

Gets Judgment

A judgment for $189.45 was returned yesterday for the plaintiff in the case of Charles Rolle against John Lane. The defendant did not answer the suit for money only. Carhart & Warner were the attorneys for the plaintiff.

Apply for Licenses

Applications for marriage licenses were made today by Clarence Garver and Mae Delaney of Marion and George Gray of Marion and Freda Redman of Caledonia.

Now after nearly two years Nobile believes him to be alive and is searching for him. Soviet Russia is aiding the search.

Alabama Beauty, Wed Six Times, Seeks New Decree

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Aug. 11—Eugenia Bankhead White, the six-time wedded Alabama beauty has declared against marriage.

In announcing her intention to seek annulment of her marriage last June 27, to E. E. White, the sister of Tallulah Bankhead film actress, said she had "found out many things" about her husband, who married her as Ed Ennis Smith at Rosarita Beach, Mex. She said they separated several days after the marriage.

White, said to be scion of a prominent up-state New York family, was arraigned yesterday on spurious check charges and held in jail in lieu of $1,000 bail. He was arrested last week.

Police charged him with issuing many checks under different names. One complaint was made by the Rev. Edwin P. Ryland, who declared White, as best man at a wedding, gave a forged $10 check as the fee.

"It was about four months ago that I did all this," White said. "I was quite intoxicated. When I came to I tried to make the checks good and did pay some of them, but, worse luck, I got drunk again and forgot the rest."

Mrs. White said as soon as the annulment is granted she will go to New York.

Morton Hoyt, her first husband, is a Washington, D. C. millionaire. She married him three times. Lawrence Butt, Jr., the second, was a University of Nevada foot ball star. Howard Lee, No. 3, is an aviator. All the marriages terminated in divorce or annulment.

"The Transforming Power of Christ," was the subject of an address given by Rev. Carl V. Roop before a meeting of the Brotherhood of First United Brethren church and their families last night at the U. B. picnic grounds at Newmans.

The address opened the monthly meeting and business session, following a picnic supper. Miss Ruth Carrier gave a group of readings. Samuel G. Coler responded with an original poem, "Our Brotherhood," as an encore number to the reading he gave.

B. K. Hill was in charge of a program. The watermelon eating contests were enjoyed. A large birthday cake baked by Mrs. Jacob Barkley in honor of Rev. Mr. Roop's birthday anniversary, centered the supper table.

Two members were enrolled in the Brotherhood. The men voted to sponsor a United Brethren church day in September.

LIQUOR ISSUE IN SPOTLIGHT

Expected To Have Important Part in Next National Campaign.

By United Press

WASHINGTON, Aug 11- The irrepressible prohibition question has forced its way to the front again from the temporary obscurity into which the economic depression threw it An effort to get modification of the Volstead act as an economic relief measure is being waged by anti-prohibition groups

Prohibition is expected to confront the administration, congress and many candidates in the next campaign in two phases Both are being agitated with a sudden burst of activity

Grape Industry Involved

One question is whether the grape industry shall continue to be allowed to market a product and service it in homes even to the final bottling of the resultant suterne claret, burgundy, or other favored wines This issue finds Mrs Mabel Willebrandt, once acclaimed as the Joan of Arc of the drys, now supplying the astute legal brains guiding the chief grape concentrate concern, Fruit Industries, Ltd, through the legal mazes so successfully that thus far Prohibition Director Amos W W Woodcock has not even brought a test case against that company

The other question centers on beer Appeals are being made to modify the Volstead act to permit up to 4 per cent beer, claimed by the wets to be non-intoxicating, as a means of relieving economic depression and adding to federal revenues

These two issues are tied together by some who protest it is unfair to grant virtual government protection to home-wine making while forbidding beer. In its prohibition report the Wickersham commission held the government was inconsistent in forbidding beer while financing wine through the federal farm board. Some drys want to suppress home wine making Many anti-prohibitionists want to give beer legal status. At present beer must contain less than one-half of one per cent of alcohol "Fruit juices" must be merely "non-intoxicating"

Plans Already Made

Senator Morris Sheppard, Democrat, of Texas, plans to reintroduce his proposal to strike out section 29 of the Volstead act– under which home made wines are permitted.

Representative L. C Dyr, Republican of Missouri, who will be chairman of the house judiciary committee, intends to press for a Volstead act amendment to permit light beer.

Bridegroom Returns, But Long Absence Is Mystery

By The Associated Press

PLANO, Ill, Aug 11--On the morning of April 13, 1928, Franz Dunbar kissed his bride of two months, climbed into his automobile and vanished

When nothing was heard from him, he was given up for dead until Saturday, when he galloped down the main street of Plano on a spirited black horse. He wore brilliant cowboy regalia, chaps, boots spurs and a 10-gallon hat.

With a flourish he pulled up before the cigar store, tossed the reins over his steed's neck, stopped to buy a package of tobacco, and then rode out of town

Wife Overcome

On the road east of Plano he met his wife Agnes She shrieked and fainted He glanced casually at her and rode on to his father's farm

His father, Robert Dunbar, was in the front yard

"All the chores done, dad?" he asked.

His father said they were.

"Well, I guess I'll put my horse up then," the prodigal replied, whereupon he put the animal away and entered the house where he greeted his mother and young brother as though, as his father put it, "he had left them but yesterday

When his wife reached the farm he nodded pleasantly enough to her but showed no particular interest in her presence and ignored her questions

Father Mystified

"Franz seems to act as though he hadn't been gone at all,' his father said "Whether he's lived a blank life these three years, or just doesn't want to talk about himself, I can't figure out I don't know any more about it than anyone else '

Since his return Franz has declined to talk with his wife. His only answer to questions as to where he had been, is "It's none of your business"
